Contracts for the Great Plant to Be Closed Up.

MR. GREEN'S INTENTIONS.

A Description of the Machinery and Buildings to Be Erected.

A 1000-Horse Power Engine—The Electrolytical Building—The Dynamis and Rollers—Capacity of the Plant—Roller Mill and Smelter.

The contract for the copper smelter and electrolytical refinery will be signed today.

S. M. Green arrived in the city yesterday morning and brought with him his metallurgist, Otto Stalmann, who is the inventor of the electrolytical process for refining copper.

After exchanging opinions as to the advisability of calling the committee together, it was thought best to make no effort to have a meeting on Washington's birthday, as the members were absent from their places of business and scattered over the city.

A MEETING TODAY. As many of the trustees as could be seen drive the 1,000-horse engine. On either side of the engine-house there will be two pump houses.

SMELTER AND ROLLING MILL. When Messrs. Green & Poser first came to the city they were looking for a site for a refinery.

The plant, these gentlemen claim, will be the most complete in the United States. The refinery will have sufficient capacity to treat twenty tons of copper matte a day, and this in connection with the smelter, will have an annual output of the value of $5,000,000 annually.

The Salt Lake plant is intended to supply the market of the entire inter-mountain country, the Pacific slope, Australia, China, Japan and the islands of the Pacific.

Its benefit to Salt Lake, if carried out in the spirit which its projectors promise, will at once create a demand for copper ores and stimulate the owners of the property to push their development to make them large producers.

The city will become a great copper center and the merchants will at once feel the thrill which a large factory of this kind will impart to every class of trade.

A PLUMBER ROBBED.

Knocked Down on West Temple and Re-lieved of $2. Fred Fuller, a plumber living at 715 East Fourth Street, was held up, and knocked down at the same time last night, paradoxical as it may seem.

Fuller was walking down South West Temple street, shortly after 6 o'clock, before the man had entirely disappeared, and when passing Watson Bros' marble yard was felled to the earth, dragged into the yard, and relieved of all his loose change, amounting to about $2. He laid in an unconscious condition until 9 o'clock, when he revived and walked to his home at Grant St.,ivery stable, where he told his story.

Information was given the police, but there is little hope that the thief will be caught, as Fuller can give no description of the person who assaulted him. The whole affair occurred so suddenly, he hardly knew how it was done, and the only visible evidence of the one-sided attack is a goodly bump on his forehead.

LOCAL SUGGESTIONS.

The territorial chapters committee will meet at St. Mark's schoolhouse at 7:30 this evening to consider a plan of organization.

Twelve Hundred Little Tots Sing National Airs.

Four Thousand People at the Tabernacle Last Evening—A Four-Year-Old Violinist—The Little Indians.

The birthday of George Washington could not have been more fittingly celebrated than by so colossal concerts as those given by Professor Even Stephens yesterday afternoon and evening at the tabernacle. Nearly 2,900 people were in attendance at the former and fully 4,000 at the evening's concert.

The performance commenced with an excellently rendered medley of national airs by the juvenile life and drum corps, during which time the little children, clad in the costumes and bearing the coat of arms of each nation represented entered, taking their respective places upon a raised pedestal while the song of the nation was being sung.

Upon the playing of the thirteen different nations, with the charming Goddess of Liberty, Miss Corinne Harris, with a background of 1,200 children waving the stars and stripes, the tableaux was rendered complete by the uplifting of a large American flag, disclosing the figure of Utah, which part was taken by Miss Clarice Thatcher, and a prettier representation could not have been had to complete the picturesqueness of the tableaux.

"Rule Britannia," "Auld Lang Syne" and the "Marseillaise" were sung by the grand chorus in a way to make the Englishman, Scotchman and Frenchman in their own peculiar "air" the most stirring in the world, while our own "Hail Columbia," "Star Spangled Banner" and "Yankee Doodle" were sung with a vim and vigor that could easily where the hearts of the little ones throbbled.

Among the soloists who succeeded in gaining the warmth of the audience was Miss Judith Anderson, a sweet little child of six years, who sang her Danish song, "Vilt Stolt Pad Codans Holje," so well that a repetition was asked.

The Swedish duet by the Youngberg sisters and the Swiss duet by the Misses Vera Belt and Minnie Goss were so well rendered and the applause so vociferous that an encore was responded to.

Anton Pederson, the four and one-half-year-old son of Professor Pederson, was the soloist of the evening. To give him a cute bow and immediately place his violin in position with all the dignity and repose of a virtuoso caused a place to be given him in the hearts of the audience, who gave vent to their appreciation by continued applause during his entire performance of a pot pourri of national airs and waltzes, the "Star Spangled Banner" and "Yankee Doodle" were reached the tabernacle fairly rank. A reappearance was insisted upon and the "Swedish Song" given in an excellent style. A beautiful bouquet of roses was given the young artist as a mark of esteem.

The Indian songs and dances caused a hilarity among the audience and our colored friends did not suffer for want of applause.

During the singing of the "March of the Men of Harlech" the little standard-bearer, Miss Marie Thomas, vacated her place, returning with an exquisite basket of roses and forget-me-nots. The prize of Professor Stephens may be imagined upon turning around to remove the young lady from the pedestal after the finishing of the song to be presented to her. The standard-bearer, but it was not to end here, for two young ladies dressed in white presented a magnificent floral lyre, 18 ft. long, upon an assemblage of flowers and a basket of immortal and three cornucopias of cut glass set upon an elegant stand, with the words inscribed thereon, "To Evan Stephens, Feb. 22, 1893."

The basket of flowers was accompanied by a card—"To Professor E. Stephens, from the Rosebuds and Forget-Me-Not of Heaven, the Juvenile Choir, Feb. 22, 1893."

The lyre of flowers—"To Evan Stephens, from the Sunday School Children, the Hope of Zion, Feb. 22, 1893."

The fan tableaux was a new and impressive feature, the entire chorus being furnished with sets of cardboard fans, colored in red, blue, green and orange, and brought into play at suitable places, so as to color the entire massive chorus, movements being made to emphasize the variety of the costumes.

They were so cleverly done that they easily surpassed the celebrated "Rowing Song" and "Hail Columbia," as done in past concerts.

The children showed that conductor Stephens had been carefully training them, and they responded to his labor in a way that spoke well of his powers in handling a chorus and particularly one of such unweary mortals. The youngsters seemed to know that they were there to obey, and obey they did. The children not only took hold vigorously, but they had their parts well memorized and made no breaks. Professor Stephens says in these children he is bringing up a musical generation that will accomplish wonders for this city's musical reputation before many years.

The whole affair was arranged by Professor Stephens to be a reminder to each of his native land, with the whole bound together in one grand union under the stars and stripes of their great adopted "land of the free and home of the brave."

The concert, all in all, was the most successful ever given financially and otherwise, and reflects a great deal of credit upon Professor Stephens and his lieutenants. A great deal of respectability rested upon the shoulders of the costumer, Mrs. Julia Sanson, and through her indefatigable efforts the artistic merits were greatly enhanced.

THE PRIZE CONTEST.

Charley Stanton announced that the judges, Messrs. D. B. Dunbar, C. P. Mason, and Walter Jennings, had awarded the first prize for the best conundrum to Rev. Dr. Uter. The following was the prize winner:

Q.—Can you tell me the difference between the book on Eagle Gate and a Salt Lake policeman?

A.—No; but I can tell you why they are alike.

Q.—Why are they alike?

A.—They both stand high and look wise but they never see anything.

Q.—Now you tell me the difference between the big bird that roosts on Eagle Gate and a policeman.

A.—The policeman is a copper, covered all over with national emblems, and the bird is the national emblem covered all over with copper.

Jeanne Russell Alford, residing at 86 Center street, won second prize with the following:

Q.—If the young husband should scold because the cutlet was cold what would the young wife do?

A.—Make it hot for him.

Charley Midgley was loaded with jokes last evening, and among the good ones he got off were:

Why is a man's bald head like heaven? Because it's a bright and shining place when the clouds are off.

Why does a hen lay all its eggs in the daytime? Because it's a roosting at night.

Why is a husband a mortal? Because he is never safe.

A FIFTEEN JOKE. Bryant's lesson in civil government was one of the "pat" jokes of the engagement, and the junketing councilmen have good cause for a liberal salute. When the junketing councilman exposed a play card with the figures and insisted that 14 multiplied by 140, multiplied by 1,000 equalled zero, the instructor said:

"Impossible!"

"No, too," insisted bones, with great union, and went on to prove it in this way: "Fourteen stands for the number of councilmen, and 140 the number of gallons of booze it took to keep them afloat while on the road; 1,000, the number of dollars it took to send them out of town, and 0 the benefit to the city got out of their trip."

This manipulation of figures was greeted with ringing applause.

A conundrum, which THE HERALD acquaintance conundred, but was too modest to draw a prize and therefore withheld it, is here given:

"Why is an axion unlike the supreme court of Utah?"

"Because it goes without a-sayin'."

THE COPPER REFINERY AND SMELTER.

CHARACTER OF THE PLANT. The public is anxious to know something of the character of the copper plant which Mr. Green proposes to erect had that THE HERALD readers may be acquainted with the style of the buildings and the machinery, a reporter called on Mr. Otto Stalmann, who is making the plans, and who will have charge of the construction of the works. The accompanying cut gives a good representation of the buildings as they will appear when completed.

THE ELECTROLYTICAL BUILDING. The long one-story building, which stands out in the foreground, while it is not the most striking from an architectural standpoint, is nevertheless the most important in the group. It is the electrolytical building, where the copper, after it has reached the smelter, will be treated and the gold and silver separated by the Stalmann process. Its dimensions are 300x150 feet, and while it is but one story high, the walls will stand up 20 feet above the stone foundation, and the entire building will be covered by an iron-truss self-supporting roof.

AN ENORMOUS ENGINE. In the engine house, which stands back of it and in front of the smelter, there will be a massive steam engine of 1,000-horse power to drive the five large dynamo that cut gives stations near the centre of the electrolytical building.

The dynamo will have a capacity of 120 watts each, and will be connected with five great rats, into which the copper will be placed to undergo the chemical action produced by the electric currents. These rats will contain the plates, for which a patent was granted by Mr. Stalmann, Jan. 19, 1892. The claim, as it appears in the Official Patent Gazette, is for an electrode consisting of a plate of refined material and a plate of crude material interspersed between said plates and metallic connections between them.

The boiler house will contain twenty-four boilers, 54 inches in diameter and 16 feet long, making a formidable battery to drive the 1,000-horse engine. On either side of the engine-house there will be two pump houses.

SMELTER AND ROLLING MILL. When Messrs. Green & Poser first came to the city they were looking for a site for a refinery, but since the very liberal action of our citizens they have determined to erect the smaller forthwith. In addition to the departments mentioned, their plans include a rolling mill, in which will be placed the machinery for rolling copper plates and wire.

CAPACITY OF THE PLANT. The plant, these gentlemen claim, will be the most complete in the United States. The refinery will have sufficient capacity to treat twenty tons of copper matte a day, and this in connection with the smelter, will have an annual output of the value of $5,000,000 annually.

The Salt Lake plant is intended to supply the market of the entire inter-mountain country, the Pacific slope, Australia, China, Japan and the islands of the Pacific.

Its benefit to Salt Lake, if carried out in the spirit which its projectors promise, will at once create a demand for copper ores and stimulate the owners of the property to push their development to make them large producers.

The city will become a great copper center and the merchants will at once feel the thrill which a large factory of this kind will impart to every class of trade.
